

Lumens & Lux

Lumens measure the total amount of visible light emitted by a source, while lux measures the amount of light that falls on a specific surface area. Essentially, lumens quantify the brightness of a light source, and lux quantifies how bright a surface appears when illuminated

